QBE Associations liability insurance

QBE Associations liability insurance protects not-for-profit or charitable associations against legal liability which it may incur through the conduct of its activities or the provision of services.

The Product

Why do Associations need protection?

Despite the charitable or non-profit nature of many associations, such organisations still face rising risk exposures. As a result, the members of an association's management board and management committees may be held responsible for their actions or, in certain circumstances, when they fail to act.

In an environment of increased responsibility and accountability, many associations are now discovering that they can also incur liability through the services that they provide to their members and/or to members of the public.

Having appropriate cover for legal costs and expenses is critical as litigation involving directors, officers and committee members of an association can be both complex and expensive. As a result, it is imperative that directors, officers and committee members of associations have access to specialised and quality legal representation to safeguard their interests in the most effective way.

QBE's Association liability insurance (which combines our Professional Indemnity insurance and Directors' & Officers' liability cover) helps protect associations against legal liabilities arising from the conduct of its activities or provision of services. Associations and their management can rest assure that QBE will offer them assistance and protection when needed.
